

Rasulullah (sallallahu alaihi wa sallam) addressed Asmaa (radiyallahu anha) and said, "Continue spending (in the path of Allah Ta'ala) and do not count and hoard, or else Allah Ta'ala will count and give you." (Saheeh Bukhari #2591)

If we will hold onto our wealth, we will deprive ourselves from receiving wealth from the unseen unlimited treasures of Allah Ta'ala. It is indeed sad that some women hold onto the money of their husbands. They wish to take full control of all the wealth that comes into the home and leaves the home. The tragedy is when the wife stops the husband from spending on the poor, or on his family members that are in dire poverty. This is definitely not the approach of a Muslim woman. She should help in good causes and encourage others as well.
